HAWAIIAN OPAH LOINS (boneless, skinless loins taken from the top rack)

The OpaH, or Hawaiian Moonfish, season is in full swing. OpaH's pink to reddish flesh is firm, with a high fat content. It has found great success in sashimi applications and is especially suited to grilling. We are getting our OpaH flown to us daily from Oahu off the F/V The Seeker.

CANADIAN SWORDFISH LOIN (Grand Banks, skin-on, blood line in)

This week our sword loins are coming to us from Grand Banks, an area southeast of Newfoundland and one of the richest fishing grounds in the world. We are sourcing "Markers" — swordfish that weigh at least 100 lbs. Fish of this size will have acquired excellent fat and will have reproduced several times.

FRESH BARRAMUNDI FILLETS (skin-on, scaled, boneless hand cut fillets)

Barramundi is the most popular seafood menu item in Australia. Although native to Australian and New Zealand waters, the majority of Barramundi coming into the country is farm raised in Palau Pankor, Malaysia, where they pioneered open ocean cage technology to raise a better-quality Barramundi. Barramundi fillets are thick with a high omega fat content. The flavor is sweet and mild, the flesh cooks up flaky yet firm, and the skin crisps beautifully. The fillets will run 1.5 to 2 lbs.

ICELANDIC COD LOIN (MSC certified, boneless, skinless, 100% yield)

Tremendously versatile and cost effective, our Wild Icelandic Cod is sold boneless/skinless, which allows for a multitude of applications on the menu. Because only the top loin is used there is NO waste — this is a 100% usable product. Icelandic Cod Loin is Marine Stewardship Council (MSC) certified, making the fish not only a healthy choice, but also a sustainable choice. Icelandic Cod is a cost-effective alternative to comparable higher priced fish, such as Halibut and Chilean Sea Bass.

BEEF HANGER STEAKS (6/8 oz size only)

Many years ago butchers used to keep this flavorful “secret” steak for themselves. The name “hanger steak” comes from the fact that the muscle literally “hangs” off the tenderloin. Coarse in nature, the flavor will be unmatched...similar to skirt steak. Although this steak is not as consistent in shape as some cuts, it’s popularity has sky-rocketed due to the eating quality. If you are looking for a trend-setting, versatile beef protein full of flavor this is your ticket. A variety of applications are in play including steak frites, Latin preparations, and salads.

BEEF TENDERLOIN VALUE CUTS

A benefit of dealing direct with a cutter like IRP, is that it affords you the chance to purchase our “by-product”. While producing all of those beautiful center-cut filets that we love to cut, we accumulate trim product that can be sold under-market to our customers. A great example are these tenderloin tips and tails. The same quality as our center cut “filet-mignons”...but a fraction of the cost. There are so many ways to take advantage of these gems and increase your bottom line despite the high-priced beef market. Feel free to ask Chef Nick Poccia or Chef Shawn Doyle for their suggestions on how to best utilize these products for your concept.
